

Adobe Sign and Guidewire: Better together.

Add secure, legally binding e-signatures to Guidewire InsuranceSuite to save even more time and money.

Property and Casualty (P&C) insurance organizations are focusing on digitizing their processes while increasing organizational efficiency. With agents and policyholders working remotely from anywhere, it is critical to eliminate paper-based and manual tasks that slow down quote approvals, delay claims, and ultimately hurt business.

That’s why P&C companies rely on Guidewire to provide a complete software platform that supports every phase of the insurance workflow—from policy creation to underwriting to claims processing to billing. But nearly every completed insurance document Guidewire manages needs a signature. And manual, paper-based methods of obtaining signatures lead to costly delays and errors that drain agent productivity and ultimately harm the policyholder experience. With Adobe Sign, P&C organizations can now make e-signatures an essential component of their Guidewire InsuranceSuite deployment.

All e-signature solutions are not created equal.

P&C organizations need their agent and policyholder e-signature transactions to support all types of documents on a global scale. Because insurance documents often include sensitive information, their end-to-end e-signature transactions must meet strict security and compliance requirements. And because Guidewire connects P&C employees with agents and policyholders, e-signature processes must be designed to optimize productivity, save money, and deliver an exceptional experience. Adobe Sign excels in each of these criteria—that’s why it is one of the industry’s top e-signature solutions.

Adobe Sign delivers the benefits Guidewire customers want most.

Adobe Sign offers prebuilt integrations with Guidewire ClaimCenter and PolicyCenter, so all Adobe Sign functionality can be instantly accessed from within the Guidewire application. Guidewire and Adobe Sign are better together—customers benefit from:
